DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d). The certified copy has been filed in parent Application No: 2000/054701 filed on 02/29/2000 ND 2000/290878 filed on 09/25/2000.

Information Disclosure Statement

2. The information disclosure statement (IDS) submitted on 02/21/2001 and filed on 02/21/2001. The submission is in compliance with the provisions of 37 CFR 1.97. Accordingly, the information disclosure statement is being considered by the examiner.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim1-4, 6,7,9-12,18,19, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hiroshi Sakashita JP Patent 06-009355 and in view of Perin 6,078,117.

Hiroshi '355 discloses a motor comprising; a rotor (6); an armature coil (7); a conductive case (5); a member for of grounding the case (Fig. 1, the element attached with screw to the case 5); a shaft having a portion extending outward from said case (1); a bearing fixed to the case (2) for rotatably supporting said shaft, means including conductive member in contact with said shaft and the case (5D); for pressing said conductive member (5) between said shaft (1) and said conductive member for maintaining pressure (Fig. 1).

Hiroshi '355 however fails to teach a motor comprises a noise suppressing circuit having a pair of noise suppressing coils connected in series with said armature coil and a capacitor connected in parallel; a conductive bearing holder fixed to the case having resilient contact member in contact with said bearing;

Perin'117 discloses a motor comprises a noise suppressing circuit (10, column 10 line 26) having a pair of noise suppressing coils connected in series with said armature coil and a capacitor connected in parallel with said pair of noise suppressing coils; (Fig. 10) a conductive bearing holder fixed to the case having resilient contact member in contact with said bearing (18, column 9, line 33-46) for the purpose of the noise suppressing and a conductive path between bearing holder and the case.

Therefore it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time The invention was made to combine Hiroshi '355 motor with a noise suppressing circuit (10, column 10 line 26) connected in to said armature coil for the purpose of suppressing the noise.

5. Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hiroshi '355, Perin'117 as applied to claims 1-4, 6, 7, 9-12, 18, 19 above, and further in view of Saito 4,920,289.

However the combined motor of Hiroshi '355, Perin'117 fails to teach a resinous bearing holder with a spherical outer and spherical inner surface.

Saito'289 discloses a motor having a resinous bearing holder (20 column 2 line 30-34) for the purpose of maximizing the isolation level between bearing and case.

Therefore it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the combined motor of Hiroshi '355, Perin'117 with a conductive bearing holder as taught by Saito'289 to maximize the isolation level between bearing and case.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 5,13-17 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments filed 08/06/2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Hiroshi Sakashita (JP Patent 06-009355) discloses a motor(Fig. 1) comprising a rotor (6, Fig. 1), an armature coil (7, Fig. 1), a conductive case (5, Fig. 1) a member (Fig. 1 the screw connected to the conductive case 5), a shaft (1, Fig. 1), a bearing fixed to the said shaft (Fig. 1), including a conducting member (2, Fig. 1 in connected to with said shaft and conductive case (5), the conductive member (2) pressing to the shaft (due to gravity and weight see translation of Hiroshi '355 page 8 line 16-20).
